

Participate in the Post-Operative Pain Study (POPS)

The study's goal is to better understand the pain patients may experience after a dental procedure and how dentists can best help their patients manage this pain.

You are invited to join this study if:

- You are a general dentist or specialist (oral and maxillofacial surgery, endodontics, or periodontics) and performs procedures that may need pain management

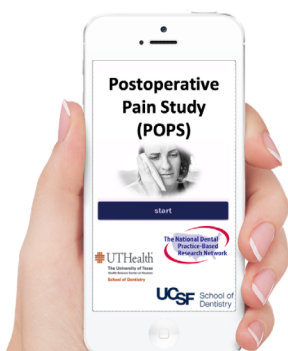

You will:

- Enroll up to 30 patients undergoing potentially painful dental procedures
- Use a mobile-Health platform for follow-up care
- Complete short surveys

Compensation provided for participating dentists and patients
